"On the long morning and evening walks to the desert I experienced a lot of different feelings.

I think it is the best environment to meet your deepest fears, desires and subconscious emotions. For me the desert is like a mirror that helped me to understand where I stand in my life. It made me very humble and patient towards the different life-situations - I learned to trust God more than ever before.

Although in the desert you can clearly see your own steps from where you came - I always prefer to go ahead to see what amazing view is hidden behind the next sand dune. Also in life."
